The Carmel Volunteer Fire Department 50 Years Old Next Week

Former Chief Torras And 'Old Laverne' Joined The Fire Department In 1923

On his way to Alaska this Spring, former Fire Chief Vincent Torras reminisced about his 34 years with the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department which started in 1923 and ended in 1957. The last 17 years of his service with the department, Mr. Torras was Carmel's fire chief, and before that, for 12 years, was assistant to Fire Chief Robert Leidig.

"We were just getting 'Old Laverne' when I joined the department and the fire house was a little place on Dolores off Ocean. Fire calls were telephoned to the Curtis candy store on Ocean Avenue and Mr. Curtis rushed around the corner to sound the alarm on the shed which housed the engine," Mr. Torras related.

After "Old Laverne" arrived, the firemen built another shed to house it at Sixth and Dolores back of Kip's on land belonging to the Leidig family, Mr. Torras recollected.

He also remembered the arrival of the Mack fire truck in 1931 and a salvage truck the following year and that these were housed in the old MacDonald dairy shed across the street.

At this time, members of the department met in a little room on Sixth Street back of a restaurant but the roof was not all it should have been. When it rained the firemen rushed to put out buckets to catch drips from the leaky ceiling.

There were "close to 30 men" in the department. They met on the Thursday nights but skipped meeting the third week of every month. The Thursday night of this week was "get-together night" when the firemen had a feed and played pinochle, according to Mr. Torras.

The pinochle players he especially recalled were Fred Ammerman, Bob Leidig, Ben Wetzel, Lynn Hodges and Pon Chung.

Fire Marshal Bob Leidig Recalls Earliest Days Of Carmel Department

Fire was an ever present threat in the early days of Carmel, especially during the dry months of the year, according to Robert J. Leidig, a founding member of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department who became the city's second fire chief in 1924 and has been Carmel's fire marshal since 1940.

During the early years of this century, Carmel's business district consisted of wooden buildings beside wooden sidewalks. Brush, grass and trees surrounded the buildings, also the scattered wooden residences on the slopes above and below the commercial area.

Townsfolk lived in dread of a grass fire after the rains ended. To combat this menace, 12 one-gallon buckets, 12 long-handled shovels and a number of rolled up sacks were kept in a six-foot square shed back of the drugstore, Mr. Leidig recalls.

When a grass fire started, and most of the fires were of this nature, he says, all the businessmen rushed out to get this equipment. They soaked the sacks in water, very often in the Ocean Avenue horse trough, and used them to beat out, or retain, the flames.

The same buckets and shovels became the first equipment of the fire department after it was founded in 1915.

FIRST BUSINESS DISTRICT FIRE

This was the year of the first fire in the business district. Mr. Leidig says that Dangerfield's butcher shop, a 25 by 50 foot building on the site of the present Village Shoe Tree caught fire. The proprietor had gone across the street to use the telephone in the real estate office of Frank Devendorf, one of the developers of Carmel. As he stepped outside of this building, the glass front of his shop burst out. An oil stove had exploded.

Everyone who could rushed to control the resulting blaze with garden hoses and the stored equipment.

Mr. Leidig's home was situated just south of the burning shop.

Everybody was sure that the Leidig home would catch fire. To protect the dwelling, Mr. Leidig tore down the board fence which divided his home from the site of the burning butcher shop. All the furniture in the house was taken out except for the piano.

"But the fire never got away," Mr. Leidig states. The rescued house later was moved down Ocean Avenue, up Lincoln, along Sixth and up Dolores to the southwest corner of Dolores and Fifth where it still stands.

The drugstore in the same block as the butcher shop was saved by soaking blankets and placing them on the roof.

FIRE COMPANY ORGANIZED

After this fire, a citizens committee was formed to raise $200 to buy a 40-gallon Stempel soda and acid fire wagon. It arrived in Carmel in July of 1915. But there was no place to put it, according to Mr. Leidig. Soon, however, citizens donated lumber and Mr. Leidig provided land on Ocean Avenue where the Cork and Bottle now stands. Birney Adams, the father of Carmel's planning director, Floyd Adams, and J. E. Nicholls constructed the building for the chemical engine. Both of them, with Mr. Leidig, were officers of Carmel Chemical No. 1, the first permanent fire company that was organized in July, 1915, and later was renamed the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department.

Fire Marshal Leidig says that the first fire after the acquisition of the Stempel wagon was a two-story house at the corner of Casanova and Eleventh. The fire brigade pulled the wagon to the fire by hand, climbed ladders and extinguished a blaze in the attic.

ALARM AND HYDRANTS

Although Carmel now had a fire engine and a fire department, it still used the bell of the Methodist Church to summon firemen. This led to confusion. When did the bell ring for a service or when did it sound a fire alarm?

Again public donations provided for the need. An alarm was bought and installed on a garage building situated in the present location of Glennon's store. This garage became Carmel's second fire house. About this time, too, ten hydrants were installed, five on Ocean Avenue and five on Monte Verde Street. The city also purchased 500 feet of fire hose.

A few years passed and it became apparent that Carmel had outgrown its Stempel. A new fire engine was needed but the city didn't want to go into debt in order to purchase it, Mr. Leidig says. Citizens again came to the rescue. Mr. Leidig, Colonel Clair Foster and Mr. Devendorf signed a note, a bank advanced money and the city paid the cash, thus provided, for its new fire engine. The city also agreed to pay off the loan over a stipulated period. The new engine, bought in 1923, is the 350-gallon Laverne pumper which the city still owns and is being reconditioned by students in the Carmel High School shop.

'OLD LAVERNE'

"Old Laverne," as this engine is now affectionately called, arrived in a box car at the railway station in Monterey. It was brought over the hill and displayed on Ocean Avenue. Mr. Leidig says that the first child to get up in "Old Laverne" was his daughter, Jean, now Mrs. Ray Draper.

The new engine was housed in an old dairy building and the garage building was turned into a clubroom for the volunteer firemen.

A short time after the engine arrived there was a fire. It was the Carmel Bakery, Mr. Leidig remembers. The express company office next door was threatened but " We got the fire out before it spread," Mr. Leidig is proud to say.

The first automobile to burn in Carmel was Henry Hitchcock's Stanley steamer, Mr. Leidig recollects. Other disastrous fires of the early years of the department he remembers were the one in which Mrs. Harrison, who gave Carmel its library, perished, and the fire which destroyed the James Hopper home in the Eighty Acres.

Mrs. Harrison's home was at the southeast corner of Camino Real and Ninth. The fire hose was stretched across lots but lacked the necessary 100 feet to reach the house. More hose was needed, too, to fight the Hopper fire, Mr. Leidig says. Criticism was levelled at Fire Chief Nicholls because of the latter lack and, as a result, he resigned. Mr. Leidig, who was assistant fire chief, then became Carmel's second fire chief. This was in 1924.

PUMPER ACQUIRED

In 1920, the fire department acquired a 750-gallon Mack pumper. Again there was a question as to where it should be housed. Jack Jordan, owner of Pine Inn, solved the problem by providing an old dairy building on Sixth Street. Photographer Murle Ogden now occupies this site, according to Mr. Leidig.

Very vivid in Fire Marshal Leidig's memory is the fire which destroyed the first Golden Bough Theatre which was located on Ocean Avenue opposite Pine Inn. It was "very fortunate" that half of the town was not destroyed as the result of this fire, Mr. Leidig declares. When the fire department arrived, Mr. Leidig decided to enter the stage area. He opened a door and was blown back 20-30 feet by a back fire but was not injured badly. Both the Monterey and Carmel Highlands fire departments sent pumpers to help fight the blaze. Pacific Grove sent firemen. "Old Laverne" was placed at Ocean and Lincoln; the Mack engine at Monte Verde and Sixth; and the Monterey pumper at Monte Verde and Seventh to combat the fire. The Highlands pumper had its own water.

But it is not only firefighting that Robert Leidig remembers about the earlier days of the Carmel Fire Department. He speaks with fervor about the cooperation given the fire department by the townsfolk. Parties were organized to raise money. Many citizens aided in fund drives and the people of Carmel donated generously.

Carmel's fire marshal, former fire chief and member of its very first fire company regrets that the townspeople of today and the members of the Carmel Fire Department are not as closely knit as they were in years past.

Above is the Carmel fire house shortly after it was completed in 1937. So new was it, that the sign above the doorways which says "Carmel-by-the-Sea Fire Station" was not even in place. In front stands the apparatus of the department at that time. At left is "Old Laverne" with the then fire chief, Robert E. Leidig, sitting in the venerable engine and wearing his white chief's cap. Next to the La Verne, is a Ford fire truck which the department no longer owns. At right is the Mack truck which is still used by the department. The man in the white hat on this piece of equipment is the then first assistant fire chief, Vincent Torras, who succeeded Mr. Leidig as chief.

Former Chief Torras Joined The Fire Department In 1923

Former Chief Torras talked about the building of the present fire house in 1936 with WPA funds and "the mess" when the second floor collapsed before it was completed in 1937. Architect Milt Latham was disgusted because a two by four brace was used to support the concrete floor of the upper story and as a result it fell in, Mr. Torras claims. He was acting fire chief at the time and was dismayed, to say the least, when he first saw the mass of rubble consequent to the faulty construction.

Carmel's first ambulance was a carryall and Mr. Torras remembers being the first man to drive it. He also recalls responding with Fred Mylar to a call down the coast at Mill Creek. They packed out a man weighing 190 pounds who had shot himself in the canyon some three miles below the road. Next day both of them could hardly stretch their legs because of the uphill drag with the injured man.

The most shocking fire that Mr. Torras recalled was the one which caused the death of three small children during World War II. Firemen responded to a call at the corner of Mission Street and Rio Road and were told there were children in the burning house. Using a high pressure nozzle as protection, firemen were able to rescue a little boy and a little girl and within 15 minutes the ambulance had them at the Community Hospital. But a neighbor then said a baby might still be in the house. Remembering that a seemingly unoccupied baby buggy had been in the jampacked room where they had found the first two children in bed, firemen went through a wall of the house but found the baby, who had been put to sleep in the buggy, was dead. Next day, despite night-long efforts of doctors to save them, the other two children died of lung damage.

But all the time the fire raged and the children were taken out, no parents appeared. Early in the morning the mother and grandmother of the children were located. They had gone to the Mission Ranch "for fun" leaving the children alone in the house, and a burning cigarette left on a porch had ignited the house. The father of the children was in Germany with the U.S. Army.

"He was flown home for the funeral," Mr. Torras sadly recalled.

Another fire with sad consequences he remembered was the blaze in which two elderly persons, bedridden John Dickinson and his wife, who was overcome by smoke before the fire department arrived, both lost their lives. Mr. Torras spoke about the intense heat firemen had to battle to get into the closed Dickinson home.

At the first Golden Bough Theatre fire, flames generated so much heat that water used to fight the fire was so hot Mr. Torras' feet were blistered when some of the water filled his boots. He was underneath the building with two or three men at the time this happened, but as fire chief he continued to direct the battle against the blaze.

"The fire department meant a lot to me," Vincent Torras emphasized. It meant so much that he missed seeing all but one of his children graduate from school because they received their diplomas on Thursday nights—fire drill nights. He never left town while the fire department was his responsibility and "my wife was a fire widow," he recalled.

Mary Torras, his wife, whose speech had a strong Scottish burr, was an active and much loved member of the fire department's Ladies Auxiliary. Her interest in the department was great enough to withstand 29 years of having the telephone beside her bed wake her as well as her husband for every fire call and false alarm.

But association with Carmel's fire department led to enjoyment, too. Besides the "third Thursday" potluck supers and pinochle games, former Chief Torras spoke nostalgically about the parties for members of the department and their wives. Smiling, he told about the Hallowe'en party at the fire house which was interrupted by a fire call. In costume, the men jumped on the engines and put out a minor fire at Staniford's drug store, now Womble's. Their wives, in costume too, watched.

"Carmel had never seen anything like Barney Brascisco, dressed up as a Mae West belly dancer, toting hoses," Mr. Torras was sure.

"After the fire was taken care of we all went back to the party," he said.

For 40 years, Mr. Torras was the Carmel agent for Del Monte Laundry.

He had lived in Carmel since 1920 when he retired eight years ago. Since then, he has lived in Modoc county where he bought property in 1924 and to which many of the fire department "boys" went to fish and hunt during the years he worked with them, and since.

He was visiting his son Vincent Jr., also his daughter, Mrs. Don Morton, while here last Spring. Now he is visiting another daughter, Mrs. Howard Lockwood, in Juneau, Alaska.

Former Fire Chief Vincent Torras' one regret was that he wouldn't be in Carmel to celebrate "the fiftieth" with the department which was so dear to him in the past, and still is.

Present Fire Chief James R. Belvail was one of Mr. Torras' assistant fire chiefs. Others were Fred Mylar, William Askew Sr. and John Huddleston.

THEY HAD A BALL

In including a street dance and dinner dance in their 50th anniversary celebration, the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department is going back to its beginnings. In June, 1916, not only Carmel residents, but persons from Carmel Valley, Monterey, Watsonville, Salinas and other towns attended the first annual ball given by the city's new fire department.

The party was a great success and the fire department's maintenance fund was "considerably increased" as a result of the festivity, the Pine Cone reported the week after the event.

Council Bandies Similes On Auctions And Sunset, But New Law Gets Laugh

City council discussion, last night, brought forth amusing similes embracing the animal, bird and insect worlds while extension of the interim law controlling auction sales and rental of classrooms at the Sunset center were under consideration. But the "big laugh" of the evening came when City Attorney John Morse read an ordinance he had prepared for the council. This new law requires off-street parking for vehicles used by owners and employees of businesses in the commercial zone. Until changed, Mr. Morse's law implied that employees might be dense in the upper story.

The interim ordinance requiring a use permit before auction sales can be conducted in Carmel contained a clause which stated that auctions, if compatible with types of uses in surrounding areas might be permitted. "Can we admit such an ugly animal to be compatible?" Councilman Gunnar Norberg queried. However, he joined other councilmen in approving the law when Mr. Morse stated that its passage was imperative before midnight.

Mr. Norberg generated similes referring to the possibility of a camel, lured by the perfume of profit, poking its nose into Carmel's lovely tent and then easing its hide and hair inside, too.

Councilman Eben Whittlesey ended all this when he said, "Mr. Norberg, in his zeal to avoid a camel is becoming an ostrich." The council then voted to extend the interim auction law for another year while a permanent ordinance is prepared by the planning commission for the council.

The next flight into rhetoric was also caused by Mr. Norberg. He opposed renting the "teachers lounge" at Sunset for use as an office by the Monterey County Symphony on the grounds that attorney's for the city's bonding company had stated no use of the Sunset premises could include fund raising.

Mr. Morse waggily said this was a question of "which dog and which tail." He added that the symphony rental, on a month-to-month basis would not frustrate the ultimate development of Sunset as a municipal cultural and community center. Mr. Norberg was trying "to kill a gnat with a sledge hammer," he inferred. The council approved the rental subsequent to approval of an agreement to be prepared by Mr. Morse.

Similar approval was given to the renting of the pottery building at Sunset to the Carmel Unified School District for $50 a month although Mr. Norberg protested that the city was "being taken for a ride."

The law requiring the provision of off-street parking for owners of businesses and their employees in any new buildings in the commercial zone, or business added to or altered in excess of half the value of the original structure, was referred to the planning commission for required public hearings.

Purpose of the law is to leave more parking for the public in the business zone.

In An Editorial Campaign The Pine Cone Helped Carmel Get Its Volunteer Fire Department

In 1915, the Pine Cone started an editorial campaign to acquire adequate fire fighting equipment for Carmel. The city already had a fire commission but this body could not legally obtain funds until March, 1916. So, according to the Pine Cone of April 14, 1915, the plan undertaken by interested citizens was to obtain needed apparatus, house it and organize a crew of firemen.

A few days later, Birney W. Adams, a state fire warden and a U.S. forest ranger, gave townspeople data on the best and most economical way to accomplish their desires. (Mr. Adams was the father of Planning Director Floyd Adams).

A Citizens Fire Protection Committee was formed and, in a week, raised $200 by public subscription. In June, 1915, the committee called a meeting at which citizens agreed to buy a 40-gallon Stempel soda and acid fire engine . . . cost $200.

The following month the chemical fire engine arrived in Carmel. "Protection at last," announced the Pine Cone.

Carmel's first fire engine was hauled over the hill by Fred Leidig and paraded up and down Ocean Avenue.

Two weeks later, a meeting was held at the Manzanita Club to organize a permanent fire company. This group was called Carmel Chemical No. 1. Leader of the company was Birney Adams. Other officers were J. E. Nicholls, assistant foreman; D. H. Greeley, secretary treasurer; Robert J. Leidig and S. J. Wyatt, trustees.

To meet legal requirements and to obtain authority, this organization was disbanded in April, 1916 at a joint meeting of the fire commission and Carmel Chemical Company No. 1. A new company was organized and took over the property of the disbanded group. New officers selected were J. E. Nicholls, foreman; Ralph W. Hicks, first assistant foreman; Harry Aucourt, second assistant foreman; W. M. Basham, treasurer; William L. Overstreet (founder of the Pine Cone), secretary.

The fire company operated under state and county authority until December of 1917 when it came under the control of the City of Carmel. At a special meeting of the city's board of trustees that month, the fire department turned over its equipment and fire house to the municipality. Since then the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department has been a department of the city's government, supported by property taxes.

Leslie Bennett Is A Bride

Urns of white flowers decorated the altar of All Saints' Episcopal Church for the wedding of Leslie Sylvia Bennett to John Gordon Julian Jr. on June 26. In the late afternoon ceremony read by the Reverend David Hill, Leslie was given in marriage by her father, Richard Bennett of Pebble Beach.

The bride's exquisite gown was her great-great-grandmother's, which was redesigned for the occasion by her mother. Fashioned of candlelight French brocade with antique Brussels lace, it had elaborate insets of lace, appliques of pearls, and trim of champagne chiffon roses on both dress and the original chapel-length train. Her silk illusion fingertip veil fell fell from a brocade circlet with flat bow, trimmed with point lace leaves and tiny seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis.

Leslie's sister and maid of honor, Gwen Bennett, wore a lime green empire style textured silk full length gown with matching gloves and shoes. Her pillbox headpiece, with a side veil, had a matching chiffon rose on top and she carried, as did all the other attendants, a bouquet of yellow baby calla lilies. The junior bridesmaids, Karin Pearson and Gail Kinnear of Pebble Beach, were miniatures of the maid or honor in dress, with circlet headpieces, trimmed with chiffon rosebuds.

Sky blue in color, the bridesmaids' dresses were identical in style to the maid of honor's. They were Christine Vetter of Coronado, Carolyn Dowd of Hillsborough, Patricia Ferris of Sacramento and Sandra Julian, the bridegroom's sister, of Pebble Beach.

Jack Barry Swahlen of Pasadena served as best man. Seating the guests were Richard Edmonds, the bridegroom's cousin from Santa Barbara; Lane Bennett, the bride's brother; Henry Smith of Pacific Grove and Clifford Charleson of San Francisco.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bennett wore a golden yellow tie-silk sheath and jacket, with multi-colored silk shoes and a toast brown feather cloche.

Mrs. Janet Edmonds of Santa Barbara, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a white knit suit with bead trim, with which she wore electric blue patent shoes with matching bag and a white organdy feather hat.

For the reception which followed the ceremony, the Beach Club was decorated with a garden theme. As a special present for the newlyweds, the "Three Sharps" — composed of the bride's brother, Lane Bennett, Mike Stephens and Louis Aytes—played at the reception.

The new Mrs. Julian attended the Cours Maintenon at Cannes, France, and graduated from the University of California last month. She was affiliated with Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and elected to the U.C. Senior Hall of Fame.

Her husband is the son of Mrs. Janet Edmonds of Santa Barbara and John Gordon Julian of Pebble Beach. He is the brother of Mrs. Terry Wilbur of Sacramento; Sandra Julian of Pebble Beach; Andrew and Casey Dunham, and Richard Estes Julian. He received his B.S. degree last month from the Menlo School of Business and is a member of Delta Sigma Pi and the Administration Honor Society.

When the young couple returns from a honeymoon in Southern California, they will make their home in Palo Alto.

Nancy Went To Girls State

During the annual session of California Girls State in June at the University of California at Davis, Nancy Jean Thompson was elected councilman of the imaginary city of Carson. The conference is part of a national youth-in-government program sponsored annually by the American Legion Auxiliary to provide citizenship training for a selected group of high school girls, chosen by their school administrators for their qualifications of leadership, scholarship and interest in government.

Nancy, who will be a Carmel High School senior next fall, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Thompson Jr. of Carmel. She was sponsored by the Carmel unit of the American Legion auxiliary.

Air Force Commission

Peter S. Willcox has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force after completion of the Air Force R.O.T.C. program at the University of Southern California. He also received his B.S.M.E. upon graduation from the university.

Lieutenant Willcox, a Carmel High School graduate, is the son of Mrs. Lydia Willcox of Carmel Highlands.

A new radio communications system was added to the equipment of the Carmel Fire Department in 1958. The citizens of Carmel were invited to an open house and to inspect the room which houses this system. It permits constant communication between firemen and the Carmel Police Department during fires. The radio system also aids police in giving fire alerts. Once an alarm is received from any source by one of the two firemen on duty day and night at the firehouse, the ten horsepower siren is sounded, also firemen are alerted by a bell system in their homes connected with the fire-house. In addition, Carmel firemen are equipped with a small box which they carry with them. As soon as an alarm is received, a buzzer in this box sounds. The buzzer is sounded by the radio communications system in the firehouse. Radio communication is also maintained between the firehouse and the Red Cross ambulance when it is out on calls.

Radio call numbers for the fire department's mobile apparatus are: ambulance "445"; GMC engine "446"; La France engine "447"; Mack fire truck, "448"; fire chief's automobile "449"; and the Ford pickup truck "450."

In the picture above, the late Del Wermuth, a member of the fire department for many years, is seated in front of the radio panel. Indicating how it is worked is Carmel's present acting fire chief, James R. Belvail. Behind him is Robert E. Smith, Carmel's first paid fire chief who resigned in March.

Star Returns To Act In 'Anything Goes' At Studio Theatre

Cole Porter's "Anything Goes," starring Dossie Hollingsworth, will open the eighth musical comedy season tomorrow at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant.

Miss Hollingsworth is a versatile actress, who excels as a comedienne. She has been described as having a bit of Lucille Ball, Carol Channing, and Ethel Merman all wrapped up in one performer "Who really delivers."

Her Broadway shows have included "Billion Dollar Baby," "Hazel Flagg," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," and she was seen as Melba in the original cast on a national tour of "Pal Joey." Other musicals in which she has had leading roles are "Can Can," "Plain and Fancy," "Golden Apple," "Kismet," "Oh Captain!", "Bells Are Ringing," and as Madame Rose in "Gypsy."

Dossie came to the Studio to play Reno Sweeney in "Anything Goes" directly from the Princess Theatre in Melbourne, Australia, where she was the author's choice to play "Elvira" in "High Spirits." Eight summers ago, Miss Hollingsworth opened the Studio Theatre in Jerry DeBono's Revue, "8 and Run."

Cole Porter's musical score includes such hits as "You're the Top," "It's Delovely," "All Through the Night," "Blow, Gabriel Blow," "Friendship," "I Get a Kick Out of You," and an exciting tap dance finale to "Anything Goes."

The producers for "Anything Goes" are Betty Hackett and Royden Martin, with the play under the direction of Michael Keller.

"Anything Goes" will play nightly, except Monday, at 8:30 p.m., alternating weekly with "The Moon Is Blue," which will re-open July 20. Dinner is served from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

He lived from 1814 to 1910, an astounding range of years for Galen Clark, Yosemite's first guardian. To him Yosemite was home, its preservation was the great purpose and love of his life. Shirley Sargent, who also loves the park and lives beside it, has given us a biography of this great man. The book is entitled GALEN CLARK, YOSEMITE GUARDIAN. The book is illustrated with photographs and the story is told in simple and realistic manner. The text is well salted with references to the notes which end each chapter. At first the reader may be tempted to regard freedom to ignore notes as a merciful arrangement. However reading the notes will show that they, too, are well written and most interesting. Many writers seem to regard the addition of notes as a sign of scholarship, which it is not. And in many cases the meat of the additional information could have been incorporated into the text and reduced the need for notes to the place where such need could have been satisfied by a list of sources at the end of the book. No one is perfect, which gives us readers a chance to complain.

This library buys cookbooks because we always need good new ones. Sometimes it seem a thankless task. Cooks seem to have little esteem for the taxes which buy library cookbooks. They tear out pictures and recipes, and they cut up our homemaking magazines until it is almost useless to file them away when the new issues arrive. Last month someone sat in the reading room and systematically reduced the new McCalls magazine to a shambles, each page carefully torn out and the whole thing so mixed it had to be destroyed. What kind of a tortured mentality does a thing like that? And where were the people who must have sat near this person and noticed the destruction of the magazine. All this by way of disparaging introduction to the fact that we have Myra Waldo's new cookbook which is entitled COMPLETE MEALS IN ONE DISH. She does good cookbooks. There are no colored pictures, which may reduce vandalism in the kitchen.

For golfers we have Arnold Palmer's MY GAME AND YOURS. In fact we have two copies, one being for borrowers with county library cards only. There are some terrific color photographs in this book. They illustrate grips and strokes and such and indicate a real inspiration on the part of someone and a resulting good use of colors and dyes.

HENRY VIII is the title of a new biography by John Bowle, who is a history professor at Oxford. The make-up of the book is bad. The type face is small and hard to read even with bifocals. The index and family diagrams at the back of the book can only be handled by using a reading glass. Author Bowle should sue Little Brown for book damages.

A history of the building of the Golden Gate Bridge is by Allen Brown. He begins his story back in the time of the Gold Rush when miners devoutly wished for a bridge across the San Francisco Bay and Emperor Norton later commanded that the bridge be built. The story contains many dramatic incidents and included among them are several accounts of present day attempts at suicide from the bridge.

The next book is not for the tender-hearted but for the brave crusader. It is entitled ALL HEAVEN IN A RAGE and it is by E. S. Turner. It is a history of man's brutality to animals from ancient times to the present day. It is a horrifying book but it needed to be written, and if you think all this is now past, read the last chapter first.

SECOND FILM IN MPC FREE SERIES

"A Double Life," second offering in Monterey Peninsula College's summer "American Classics" film series, will be shown tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the MPC music hall.

Produced in 1947 by Michael Kanin from a script by Garson Kanin and Ruth Gordon, the film stars Ronald Colman in a role which won him an Oscar. Shelley Winters appears in one of her first small roles.

Accompanying the main feature will be a short subject, "The Moor's Pavane."

The Carmel Fire Department all through its existence has endeavored to instill the principles of fire prevention in the children of the city. For years, during Fire Prevention Week, school children have been invited to visit the firehouse: given rides in the fire equipment. Carmel fire chiefs have visited the schools, talked to the pupils about how fires may be prevented in their homes and distributed pamphlets to help them check out home fire hazards. In consequence, many a parent has been led to improve conditions which might result in a conflagration. The fire department has also taken children for rides in new equipment such as the American La France fire engine which arrived in Carmel in January 1963.

Especially designed for this community, the fire engine was built to order at a cost of $27,000. With 300 horsepower under its hood, it can pump over 1,200 gallons of water an hour and reach any fire quickly. Paul Artellan is the fireman riding on the running board in the picture above.

Book On Crow Indians

Staying with Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw Williams of Carmel Highlands until the end of August is Peter Nabokov who graduated with a bachelor's degree in English from Columbia University last month. While here, Peter is putting into final shape a book on the Crow Indians of Montana with whom he lived while associated with the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs. He originally prepared his study, centered around a chief of the tribe, to be published as a monograph for the Museum of the American Indian in New York City maintained by the Heye Foundation. Now the museum is arranging for his work to be placed with a publisher.

Carmelite Wed In Des Moines

Joan Brooks Wallace became Mrs. Herbert Wendell Myers on June 26 at Saint Paul's Episcopal Church in Des Moines, Iowa.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Florence Kling of Des Moines, was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Robert Powell of Mason City, Iowa. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Myers of Carmel.

The center aisle of the church was lit by candle-lanterns and on the front of the chancel was an arrangement of greenery and multi-colored rosebuds. White roses and candelabra decorated the altar. Baroque pieces by Bach, Purcell and Couperin were played by the organist.

White silk organza and Alencon lace, embroidered with tiny seed pearls, was used for Leslie's traditionally styled gown. It had short sleeves and a short train. Her full, shoulder-length veil fell from a crown of Alencon lace and seed pearls and she carried a spray of baby white orchids centered with yellow roses.

Her maid of honor, Frances Green of Des Moines, chose a long, empire style gown of yellow cotton Ottoman, trimmed with an olive green band and yellow lace. On her hair was an olive green bow, and she carried a colonial bouquet of multi-colored rosebuds. The bridesmaids, who wore identical costumes, were Linda and Diane Wallace, sisters of the bride, and Virginia Wisdom of Des Moines.

Jan Phillips of Seattle, Washington, served as best man. Seating the guests were Tim and David Kling of Newton, Iowa, cousins of the bride; Robert Thelan, Herb Plambeck and John Thelan, all of Des Moines.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wallace chose a sleeveless, pale grey-green silk chiffon dress with matching hat.

Mrs. Myers wore an embroidered yellow and blue silk gown with short sleeves and matching hat.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Wakonda Club in Des Moines.

When they return from their wedding trip in the Southwest, the young couple will make their home in Palo Alto, where they will continue their studies in the music department of Stanford University.

The new bride attended schools in Des Moines, Iowa, and will receive her bachelor's degree in music from Stanford in December of this year.

Her husband, an honor graduate of Carmel High School and Monterey Peninsula College, graduated from Stanford in 1964 and is now working toward his master's degree in music. He is a life member of Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society.

Carla Wagenman Engaged

A fall wedding is planned for Carla Wagenman and Frank Edward Frates II of Atherton, whose engagement was announced recently by Carla's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wagenman of Carmel.

A Carmel High School graduate, Carla attended the University of California at Berkeley, where she was affiliated with Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Her fiance, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Edward Frates Jr. of Stockton and South Orange, New Jersey, also attended the University of California at Berkeley. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and of the San Francisco Bachelors.

Douds In Islands

Mr. and Mrs. James Doud flew to Honolulu last Thursday where they are guests at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel for a three-week vacation.

They will return to welcome Mrs. Doud's sister, Florence (Mrs. Robert Hart) of Connecticut, who will be in California later this month to visit her mother, former Camelite Mrs. Florence Sharon Brown, her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Carmel Valley, and several friends here and in other areas of the state.

MPC Honors List

Joseph A. Jeremy and Cameron E. Lindberg of Carmel are two of the five honor students on the Spring, 1965, Dean's List at Monterey Peninsula College who won "highest honors" with a straight A grade point average.

Carmel students in the "high honors" category were Diena K. Farr, John A. Gualtieri, Athanas W. Lolov, James McAllister, John S. Messersmith, Nancy M. Miller, Glenn L. Mohler, and Rose Marie Pollock.

HIGH TWELVE PROGRAM

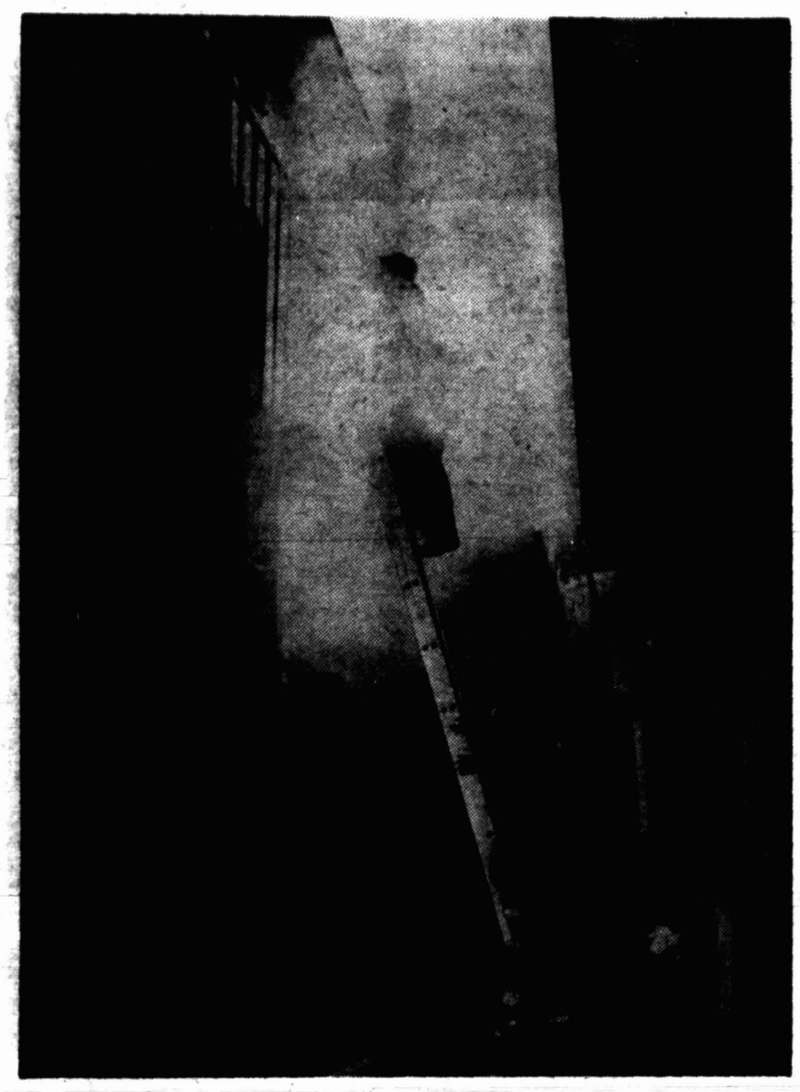
Arch Balchin will speak to High Twelve Club members at their weekly luncheon meeting on Monay noon at Cypress Club. His subject will be the Balchins' two-month sojourn in the British Isles and his visits to English Masonic Lodges. All regular Masons are invited to attend.



Ten years ago in June, "somebody at the library who saw smoke pouring out of a building but was too excited to give her name," according to the fire report, alerted Carmel firemen that the Bib N'Tucker on Ocean Avenue was on fire a 6:30 p.m. The blaze was difficult to handle because of the volume of smoke and gases generated by smouldering clothing, and because firemen had to maneuver in a narrow alley. But the "all clear" siren was sounded an hour an ten minutes after the first alarm was received.

Else Vetter

Funeral services were held yesterday morning at Carmel Mission Basilica for Mrs. Else K. Vetter, the wife of Carl P. Vetter, who died Sunday in a Peninsula hospital following a lengthy illness.

Born in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1895, Mrs. Vetter was a graduate of the University of Copenhagen and studied medicine for three years prior to her marriage. As the wife of an engineer, she lived all over the world, although the couple first came to the United States in 1918. Having visited Carmel, with her children, in 1925, Mrs. Vetter was determined to return to make a permanent home here. This she did in 1956, following her husband's retirement to the capacity of a consultant.

Internationally-traveled, with a broad range of interests, Mrs. Vetter was known as a charming hostess.

In addition to her husband, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Lise Tescher of Carmel and Mrs. Ellinar Shinner of Los Angeles, and six grandchildren.

Private burial followed yesterday's services. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Two years ago in January, members of the Carmel Fire Department prevented a major conflagration at La Playa Hotel. They are seen above fighting a chimney fire which had spilled over into attic spaces before a desk clerk heard a roar in the lobby fireplace and summoned the fire department. Firemen attacked the blaze through scuttle holes which the department had located during routine fire inspections of the building. Fire inspection of buildings used by the public is constantly carried on by the department, and as demonstrated by the La Playa fire, provides useful knowledge if any fire occurs.

But back in 1924, La Playa Hotel was almost completely destroyed by fire. A week before Christmas in the early evening hours, the fire siren sounded during a hailstorm. Soon the sky south of town was reddened with flames and all the townspeople who could, disregarding the rain, flocked to the blaze, the December 20, 1924 Pine Cone reports.

This issue also says, "The limited facilities of the local fire department were quite inadequate to successfully combat a fire of such magnitude. But a number of the boys risked their lives, time and again, in efforts to subdue the flames. It is due in great measure to their work that no adjoining property was destroyed."

The La Playa building destroyed in 1924 was built in 1906 by an artist, Chris Jorgensen. He married into the Ghiradelli family and his Carmel home was known as "The Chocolate Castle." It was largely constructed of wood. In 1915 Mrs. Agnes Signor bought the house and turned it into a hotel. In 1922 Mrs. Helen G. Mueth purchased La Playa and managed it with the help of her sons, Fred and Harrison Godwin. The burned building was replaced and forms the nucleus of the present La Playa Hotel. Harrison and Fred Godwin are honorary fire chiefs of the present Carmel Volunteer Fire Department.

FIRE COMMISSIONER

Each Mayor of Carmel appoints a member of the city council to be fire commissioner and take on the responsibility of the fire department. The present fire commissioner is Councilman Eben Whittlesey, a former Mayor of the city.

Carmel, Monterey Firemen Fought Oil Tank Blaze

Members of Carmel's fire department helped Monterey to combat the disastrous oil tank fire in 1924 which destroyed the entire plants of Associated and Standard oil companies, several fish canneries, many small houses and threatened the entire city.

A bolt of lightning first ignited a tree at the Presidio then struck a huge oil tank on Lighthouse Avenue. It took two days and two nights to control the resultant blaze.

Mayor Benjamin Wright of Monterey thanked the Carmel Fire Department for its aid. That the fire was halted on its way to Pacific Grove was due to the unceasing work of Carmel firemen who spent 20 hours of unceasing effort to control the westward spread of the fire.

Carmel's fire chief, J. E. Nicholls, and his first assistant chief, Robert J. Leidig, were assisted by a crew which included the town marshal, Gus Englund, Argyll Campbell and Pon Chung.

The day after the Monterey fire was controlled, Carmel firemen were called out to fight the blaze which almost destroyed the James Hopper house, now the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gilbert. The Monterey department under Chief Parker helped Carmel firemen fight this conflagration.

FOREST SERVICE READY FOR SUMMER

Members of the Big Sur guard station of the United States Forest Service, together with other members of the service, whose work is to guard, maintain and preserve the Los Padres National Forest, are in readiness for the summer season—a season which is expected to have a tremendous use of the national forest and its facilities.

New to the Big Sur station this season is James "Wally" Acton, fire crew foreman. Mr. and Mrs. Acton and family came to Big Sur in May from San Luis Obispo, where Acton was based at Pozo Station within Los Padres. "Wally" Acton is originally from Montana and for the past ten years has been associated with the U.S. Forest Service, except for a period of service in the Korean War.

Working with Foreman Acton is a five-man crew. John Uhle, well known in Big Sur and environs since he has been at the station for the past six years. He is chief tank truck operator and is assisted by Phil Struve in this operation. Gregory "Craig" Fagen of Soledad and Gerald Johnson, a forestry student from the University of Minnesota, are both new to Big Sur and will remain here throughout the summer season. Fire prevention technician is Art Martell who has been a member of the Big Sur staff for the past year, having come from Arroyo Seco. Back country patrol officer is Bill Clark whose duties include checking of trails and campsites and being of service to those using the back country.

Members of the forest service enter the season with the knowledge that this year, perhaps more than ever before, the pressures of population will find a great increase in the number of people using the wilderness areas. Early rains have produced an abundance of grass growth and many areas have already turned golden and dry. The people that use these forest areas — your forest — are urged to be extremely careful.

PREVENT FOREST FIRES! Crush out your smokes — break your match in two—drown your camp and warming fire.

LITTLE LYRIC THEATER

The Little Lyric Theater of Big Sur has held auditions for this summer's production of "King Arthur" by Henry Purcell. The auditions were open to children between the ages of eight and 15 and were conducted by the director of the theater, Gene Perrine of Big Sur.

The Lyric Theater held its first sessions last summer and concluded the season with a production of "Echo and Narcissus," an opera based on a Greek myth, and a one-act musical, "Chain of Jade," based on "The Stolen Prince" by Dan Totheroh. The success of this pilot effort convinced the supporters of the theater that it should become a permanent part of the activities of the Big Sur community. The theater is a non-profit organization for the primary purpose of encouraging and developing the musical talents of children through education and musical productions.

Rehearsals for the 1965 production, "King Arthur," will begin July 22 and conclude the first week of September when two public performances will be staged on September 4 and 5.

Presently Director Perrine is in Steamboat Springs, Colorado, where he is directing the production of an opera at the Perry Mansfield School of Dance and Theater. Robert Skiles, an associate member of the Little Lyric Theater of Big Sur, is also at Perry-Mansfield teaching classes in art. Catherine Bengston, Eve Ross and Marge Johnson, all of Big Sur, are also associate members of the Lyric Theater.

Resplendent in authentic tartan kilt and accessories, Gordon Robertson, left, receives good wishes for his success as new owner of The Casual Shop from former owners, Mrs. Richard P. Richardson, center, and Mr. Richardson.

A native of Edinburgh, Mr. Richardson retains an interest in the family-owned Tartan Gift Shop there which he managed, along with its two Edinburgh branches, Hamilton House and Scots House, from 1957 until recently. His knowledge of the direct source for the best of his country's goods will enable him to specialize in all things Scottish, including tartans, tweeds and knitwear.

Mr. Robertson is a graduate of Daniel Stewart's College in Edinburgh and served as a regular officer in the Royal Scots Fusiliers for five years.

Three years ago, he came here for the first time on business with The Casual Shop and decided Carmel would be a fine place to raise a family.

In February of this year, he brought his wife, Eleanor, to see how she liked the community. She loved it. So then and there, they made arrangements to purchase the Scotch import shop, bought a house in Mission Fields, went back to Scotland to sell their house there and collect their children, and returned to Carmel to stay.

The Robertsons have three children, Graeme, six; Mark, three and a half; and Michael, two.

M. Lindsay-Oliver

Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver, whose lifetime was devoted to the development of her own versatile talents in the performing arts, and in nurturing the talents of others, died Sunday in a local hospital after a period of failing health.

A concert pianist, composer, impresario and teacher of piano and voice, Miss Lindsay-Oliver was born 88 years ago in Rosenburgh, Scotland. She was graduated from the Royal Academy and Royal College of Music, Trinity College and Guildhall College of Music, London.

She worked ceaselessly to foster an interest in music wherever she was, and it was her dream that one day the United States would officially establish an agency for this purpose. A perceptive music critic, her reviews of local performances appeared for many years in The Pine Cone. She was also a contributor of articles to national magazines and was for five years correspondent for "Musical America."

She was a dedicated supporter of the Monterey County Symphony, and a woman of indomitable courage. Except for her last illness, and on occasions when she was out of town, she never missed a rehearsal of the symphony orchestra.

Among her compositions are several major works, including "The New Day," dedicated to the peace of the world, a requiem for voice and orchestra, numerous songs and instrumental music, and incidental music for plays. Also an accomplished poet and painter, Miss Lindsay-Oliver was the author of a number of librettos and a large volume of poems.

She performed with such distinguished organizations as the Boston Symphony, the San Carlo Opera Company, La Scala Symphony, the Pavlova ballet company and the Scotti Opera Company. As a singer and actress in her early years, she appeared in drama and light opera roles in Great Britain, and was proud of her acquaintanceship with the composers of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas.

She was instrumental in developing choral groups in Illinois during World War I, as well as organizing and directing musical programs and operas for the benefit of the Red Cross and soldiers.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver was a life member of the National Federation of Music Clubs and a charter member of the National Concert Managers Association. Her other affiliations include the New York branch of the National Penwomen, Dramatists and Authors League of America, Iona Society, Actors Association of England, International Peace Crusade, English-Speaking Union, Lyceum Club and the Artists' League.

She is survived by two brothers, Gordon of Texas and Conrad of Australia; a sister, Sister Gabriel of Lake Forest, Illinois; and a nephew.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at the Paul Funeral Chapel in Pacific Grove, with the Reverend H.M.M. Nicholas officiating. Burial followed in El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

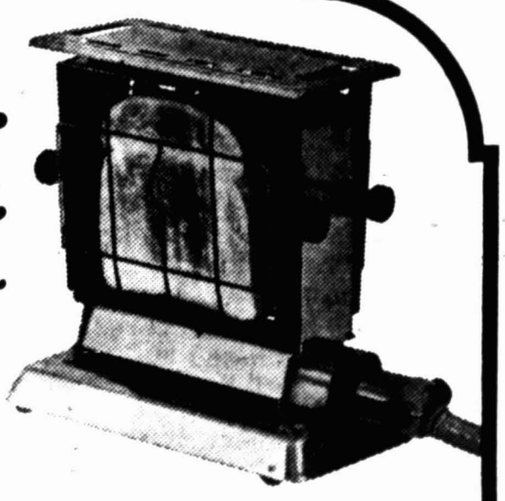
PG&E energy was a bargain 30 years ago...



but PG&E rates are even lower today!

Your PG&E bill is bigger than it used to be because you're using more light, more heat and more appliances. PG&E rates, however, have gone down. The same amount of gas and electricity costs less today than it did in 1935. PG&E energy is still your biggest household bargain.

Letter To Editor

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone

Having lived through the San Francisco disaster of 1906, it is interesting to note the proposal of the government to establish a landmark and observation station on the San Andreas fault, eight miles south of Hollister.

A rough estimate at the time indicated 370,000 square miles of the earth's surface, west of the fault, as shifting northward up to 20 feet judged by the distances between the broken ends of fences crossing it at many points between Point Arena and Tres Pinos.

Nothing within the limits of this enormous area was entirely immune. However, it was learned that as a general rule, the greatest damage occurred on river bottom, alluvial, marshy and filled-in land whether in the immediate vicinity of the rift or upward of 20 miles from it. Incidentally, with the exception of several fallen chimneys on Hotel Del Monte, the Monterey Peninsula suffered little or no damage.

The California Earthquake Commission of 1906-07, headed by Dr. David Starr Jordan then president of Stanford University, as part of its extensive studies along the entire length of the fault in California, reported that five miles south of Watsonville or in the immediate vicinity of Moss Landing, the then existing railway track was shifted 12 feet out of line.

At Moss Landing itself, in accordance with photographs, damage was general. A trestle and warehouse collapsed, several box cars were derailed, one of which apparently settled at a right angle to the track, while a building and a tree moved 12 feet from their original locations, all which took place at least 13 miles from the rift.

To dispel the idea that only buildings and structures located in the immediate vicinity of an active fault are apt to suffer, from personal observation, a large section of the west wall of the sugar refinery at Spreckels fell out, a building or two in Salinas were converted to rubble and one end of the Salinas River bridge on the Monterey road was dumped into the river. This is 20 miles from the fault line.

During the arguments pro and con in the case of the proposed atomic plant at Bodega Head in Sonoma County, it was brought out that at least two and possibly three earthquakes of intensity equal to or greater than that of 59 years ago, could be expected on the San Andreas fault within the next 100 years. As science is not able to pinpoint the approximate date of the first of these disturbances, it can be anyone's guess when it will take place. Nevertheless, the government considers it of vital importance to keep close watch on the rift.

Should the use permit be granted to Humble Oil Company to construct a refinery at Moss Landing, for its own protection, it will of course be a matter for its engineers to make exhaustive tests of the site in advance of construction. On the other hand if an atomic plant be contemplated at this location at some time in the future, it would seem to be a matter calling for intensive study on the part of county officials.

As one views the steady tension building upon the rift near where the monument is contemplated, let us hope Monterey County officials will not overlook this potentially dangerous neighbor as have those of other counties where entire subdivisions have been laid out directly on top of the faulted areas.

Yours very truly,
Malcolm W. Steel

Flamenco Success At Sunset

BY WANDA SUE PARROTT

Ciro's Flamencos came to Carmel on June 26, bringing Andalusian realism to Sunset auditorium. Petite Rosa Montoya danced and sang her way across the stage, which was transformed into a Spanish gypsy cave by orange, blue and green lighting effects. The air rang with castanets, clapping, and chanting.

Rosa's expressive features were subdued by lack of footlights, but her voice and dancing fully expressed the mournful wails, as well as lighthearted gaiety, of Spain. Moving like a streak, she stamped offbeat rhythms which softened to unbelievable quiet.

Peeking from behind lacy scarves, or whirling until her flounced skirt rose several inches off the floor, Rosa brought enthusiastic shouts of "Ole!"

Flamenco music is "music of the gypsy soul," and Jose Linares' guitar accompaniment displayed the fervor of Spain's people. Jose was, recently discovered, at the age of 17, and already has won the reputation in San Francisco of being a "rising young virtuoso." His skill as a guitarist was proven when he played difficult, fast passages with his left hand alone.

Enhancing the show with lively movement and handclapping were two young ladies, Luisa Escobar and La Conte. Their superb performance of the gay "Verdiales" showed great skill in the ballet. Often they worked in unison, with precision which marks much promise for them in the entertainment field.

Credit for the production goes to Sam Haycraft, who brought the troupe to Carmel and also worked the artistic lighting. Ciro, the featured performer, also choreographed the production.

Ciro's appearance astounded the audience. His portrayals of humanity's many emotions ran the gamut from profound sorrow to carefree abandon. He whirled and leaped like an acrobat, and seemed to be dancing in the air at one point. Later he performed the most difficult of dance steps by beating 32 beats to the measure with his foot. An extremely versatile man, Ciro holds a law degree. His dedication, however, is to the theater.

Highlighting the production was the performance of F. Garcia Lorca's touching love poem, "Zorongo," in which Rosa Montoya and Ciro portrayed lovers who were haunted by despair. Because of poor acoustics, some of their words were lost, but their dancing compensated for the lack of sound.

The entire troupe was received with enthusiasm. Flamenco aficionados called for more, and the show could have continued all night.

Many thanks are due to Sam Haycraft for bringing this fine show to Carmel.

A former Carmel postmaster, Fred J. Mylar, contributed much to the Red Cross ambulance service provided by the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department prior to his death in 1957. He was first aid instructor for the Carmel Red Cross chapter from 1942-1955 and chairman of the chapter's ambulance committee from 1939-1955. Mr. Mylar was also a volunteer fireman and first assistant fire chief. He spent many hours training the fire department's ambulance crew and unselfishly answering ambulance calls and was instrumental in obtaining a new ambulance for Carmel in 1949 and went to Ohio to drive it here.

How Firemen Answer Alarms

Three types of alarms are answered by the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department with varying amounts of apparatus.

A "still alarm" calls for the blowing of the air horn alarm at the firehouse and response with the big La France engine. Gas washdowns are the most frequent cause of still alarms. They occur when the gasoline in the tank of an automobile overflows on city streets creating a fire hazard. The overflows are generally the result of a gas tank being filled up in hot weather. If the automobile is parked in the sun, the gas inside the tank expands and overflows on the roadway.

The second type of alarm, is the "first alarm." The horn is blown, the bell system in firemen's homes is set off and the tone box each man carries is activated by the firehouse radio system. The La France engine goes out first followed by the department's Ford pickup carrying the light generator, tools and a water tank, "First alarms" are sounded for automobile fires and home fires which only involve one object such as an oven or a couch.

The third type of alert is the "general alarm." For this, the siren is sounded, the horn blown, the bell system activated and the buzzers sounded. The La France engine rolls out of the firehouse first followed, in order, by the Mack fire truck, the pickup truck, the GMC engine and the Red Cross ambulance.

NEW KIWANIS MEMBERS

Dr. A. J. O'Connell, who has never missed a meeting in his 37 years in the Kiwanis Club, inducted two new members into the club at a business meeting held at Pine Inn last Thursday. They are Burt Richards of the New York Life Insurance Company and Harold Apger, partner in the C.P.A. firm of King, Apger, Franceschi and White.

Vice president Ben Updike presided at the meeting in place of president Don Mitchell, who is in New York.

Pine Needles . . .

Ferrantes Wander

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ferrante spent the Fourth of July weekend wandering by car, whither their wishes took them. Before they returned to Carmel they had visited San Juan Bautista, San Francisco, Santa Rosa, Stinson Beach and Brookdale, mostly following little-travelled roads.

Criley Celebration

Tuesday night, Don and Lydia Criley invited to their Carmel Meadows home a group of local friends of Don's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Criley of Claremont. The occasion was Mr. Criley's birthday, but the party served, too, to honor Mrs. Criley's birthday which is tomorrow, also her and her husband's wedding anniversary which is next Tuesday, "And then," said Mrs. Criley, "if anyone in the family wants to, they can celebrate Bastille Day on Wednesday." Each year, the Criley family celebrations in July begin with Independence Day and usually end with the French holiday.

Party For Lloyd Weer

Friends and former business associates of Lloyd Weer will gather at Mission Ranch Saturday evening for a dinner party in his honor. Mr. Weer's retirement as manager of the Carmel P.G.&E. office after 35 years became official at the end of June. Clem Trapkus is in charge of arrangements.

Fourth Of July Party

Fog on the coast below contrasted with the warm sunshine which prevailed on Sunday on the divide between Palo Colorado and Garrapata canyons where Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bates have built a hilltop house. Invited that day to share with them their new home, Glen Deven, its spreading deck at treetop height and the swimming pool beside the house were all the men who had in any capacity worked on the construction of the Bateses' home. The men's wives and children also were invited to the party which included luncheon and hikes or drives to the floor of Garrapata Canyon for those who desired to explore. A record player beside the pool provided music for dancing and singing, guitar and harmonica playing added to the gaiety of the memorable Fourth of July gala.

Frankie DeAmaral Home

Captain Frank DeAmaral Jr. of the U.S. Air Corps, his wife, Patricia, and their four children are enjoying a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeAmaral, at River Ranch in Carmel Valley. "Frankie," currently on leave status, will report for special training at Fort Benning, Georgia, before beginning a tour of duty in Viet Nam.

The small fry, Frankie III, Mary Elizabeth, Gwyn and Zane, are having such a wonderful time at the ranch that the senior DeAmarals hope they can convince Pat to remain with them while "Frankie" is overseas.

Dan James Here

Dan and Lilith James, off-and-on Carmelites, have arrived from Hollywood to spend the summer in the Carmel Highlands home of Dan's mother, Mrs. D. L. James. Their daughter, Cathy, who has just finished her first year at the University of California in Santa Barbara, came along with her horse. Another horse has appeared with the Jameses' grandchildren, Martha and Nellie Willard, who are here with their mother, Mrs. Dan (Barbara) Willard of Davis.

The family is planning an important celebration this weekend, when Mrs. James's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Roes of Los Angeles, will be visiting on the occasion of their 45th wedding anniversary.

For nearly 30 years, specially trained members of the fire department have made up the crew for the ambulance which is kept at the fire station. When an ambulance, purchased by public subscription, arrived in Carmel in 1937, the firemen held an open house so that townsfolk could admire the first Red Cross mobile highway unit on the Pacific Coast. Standing proudly beside the present ambulance is Chief Belvail, at right. In their white coats in the ambulance are crewman Ronnie Leidig, Tom Broadbent and Captain Chuck Grimshaw. Outside, Bill Hill, also in a white coat, Paul Artellan and Lee McGuckin "smile for the birdie."

NO PROGRAM AT FOREST THEATER

The Carmel Arts Commission regretfully announces that the program scheduled for this Sunday afternoon at the Forest Theater has been cancelled. The series will resume next Sunday with a performance by the Ivanovsky Ballet.

Wedding Plans Made

Michele Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Mason of Portland, Oregon, has set August 7 as the date of her wedding to Richard Tetley at Carmel Mission Basilica. Her maid of honor will be Judy Cuneo of Burlingame, a Delta Delta Delta sorority sister at the University of Oregon. For her other attendant she has chosen her fiance's sister, Mrs. Dennis R. (Jane) Escola.

Richard, the son of Mrs. Audrey Marten Tetley of Carmel and Colonel Wilfred H. Tetley of Buffalo, has asked his lifelong friend, William Doolittle of Carmel and San Francisco, to be his best man. They are both members of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Following their marriage, Michele and Richard, both graduates of the University of Oregon, will make their home in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Richard, who has received a fellowship at the University of Michigan, will complete his studies for a master's degree in plant physiology. His fiancee plans to work for her master's degree in librarianship.

HOW ABOUT A GARDEN COTTAGE in that desirable south of Ocean location? It's an easy stroll to all shops and yet the neighborhood is quiet and restful. There are three bedrooms, two baths, and a sunny dining room — all on a level lot and one half. Best of all, all appliances, even the washer and dryer are included at only $29,500.

DOWN NEAR THE POINT is a lovely home on a level landscaped lot which anyone looking for a snug and immaculate 3 bedroom home should see. There are 2 baths, lots of closet space, a dining-ell and open views of the Bay and Valley mountains. The patio is a sun trap! We recommend this highly at $35,500.

ALSO, WE HAVE A TOP-O-THE-WORLD view home for lease. There are 2 bedrooms, 2 luxurious baths, and one of the most exciting living and dining rooms we have seen. Offered completely furnished at $350 a month but if you have your own furniture and want only the Indian wool carpeting and decorator drapes, we can work out something to your satisfaction. Gardener provided.

On June 16, Mayor Herbert Blanks made Pon Chung an honorary chief of the Carmel Fire Department when he pinned on his gold badge of office, above. Honorary Chief Chung says he was born in San Francisco 70 years ago and came to Carmel when he was 25 years old. He has been associated with the fire department for 45 years and although he now lives "over the hill" visits Carmel almost every day and checks in at the fire house frequently.

Other holders of Carmel Fire Department honorary chief badges are Fred and Harrison Godwin and J. O. Handley.

The Rhyming Philosopher

By Harry W. Fletcher

No. 115

You ask me what is love? My dear,
It's more than I can simply tell,
And more than words, or atmosphere,
Or sufferings of hidden hell.

Love's not defined or held in grasp,
But vaprous as the morning mist:
Nor be commanded, much less asked
As may beseeching lips be kissed.

Love has no sex, nor meets and bounds,
And no religion, laws or rules;
Not having voice, it has no sounds,
And when embarassed quickly cools.

For love is like the shade of trees
That shelters from the searching sun;
Enfolding as the gentle breeze;
And but by giving it is won.

For 21 Years, Carmel Firemen Moved From Shed To Shed Before Present Fire House Was Built

The Carmel Volunteer Fire Department waited a long time for its present home, which finally opened its doors for public inspection in April, 1937. Since the day in 1915 when, according to the Pine Cone, "The large number of dwellings erected in Carmel during the past two years, to say nothing of prospective new buildings, makes imperative the immediate acquisition of adequate fire-fighting apparatus," the struggle to provide permanent housing, with quarters for the firemen, has continued.

In 1929, when the volunteers circulated petitions asking the city council to call a bond election for $45,000 for the construction of a fire house and the purchase of land and new equipment, economy-minded citizens proposed that the plans be included in a civic center to be constructed on city-owned Block 69, later named Devendorf Plaza. It was their contention that all could be accomplished for the same price and considerable support for the use of city property was expressed. When it became apparent that the cost of the proposed civic center would be nearer $85,000, strong recommendations for the sale of city lands for immediate revenue arose. This, in turn, brought forth the need for long-range planning, which continues today.

It was January of 1930 before the city council discovered that steps must be taken for discontinuance of part of Block 69 as a park before an election could be called and accordingly scheduled a public hearing on the matter. Vociferous protests from a citizens' group at the hearing caused the city fathers to end proceedings to put the civic center on Block 69. A bond election for $15,000 for purchase of new equipment was set, and the fire department went back to its leaky quarters on Sixth Street and San Carlos behind what is now Kip's.

In June, 1935, a committee was named to investigate ways and means for an adequate fire house. By July, the department and the committee were ready wth recommendations — and there was the bright prospect of P.W.A. help. The plans momentarily hit a snag when a councilman proposed the inclusion of temporary jail cells in the plan, but this was resolved by September, when the council gave its blessing to the project. With W.P.A. approval in January, 1936, and the agency's promise of $9,046 as its share of the estimated total of $21,046, a bond election was called for $12,000, to include purchase of land, building and furnishing of the fire house.

In endorsing the proposal, Pine Cone Editor Perry Newberry wrote, "An orphaned fire department without a home? Never in its 21 years of existence has the Carmel volunteer fire department failed to have a roof to cover it, be it ever so humble. Crude sheds, always, but home, sweet home.

"The first one was about eight feet wide and 12 feet long, and as it might have to be moved at any time, it had for a foundation a pair of skids . . . it was moved several times as the city grew and crowded it from lot to lot . . . Charlie Goold would always furnish a team of horses and a heavy log chain for the moving, and with the enthusiastic cooperation of all the boys and dogs of Carmel, the little fire house would be skidded to its new location . . .

"It was outgrown when the first pumper was bought in 1923, and crude sheds have taken the place of it ever since . . . 21 years is a long time to wait."

The bonds carried 664-75, the Bank of Carmel submitted the low bid for their purchase, and construction was scheduled to start the end of July — it actually started in September. Work progressed well until, on November 14, a portion of the second-story floor collapsed, taking with it another four-foot portion, and the upper part of the east wall and the beams over the two northern doors were forced out of line.

Minor injuries were sustained by workers and by Milt Latham, combined city-WPA architect. The work of clearing the debris might have been easier if the volunteers had been able to wash away the still-wet cement, but the need for investigation prohibited this and the set-up concrete eventually had to be laboriously blasted and chipped away. Although a variety of causes for the misfortune was investigated, any direct one remained undetermined and rebuilding of an estimated 20% was started soon after.

Concerning Carmel's volunteer department today, "Dig up at once, and do it cheerfully," as Will Overstreet, founder of the Pine Cone, wrote in 1915. "It will be much wiser to help purchase the necessary protection than to lose your home."
